

VERMONTERS ARRIVE WITH 101ST M. G. B. ON SHIP AGAMEMNON

Third Contingent of the 26th Division Reached Boston Harbor To-day and Will Come Up to Her Dock Late This Afternoon, Having Been Delayed by Fog.

TRANSPORT BROUGHT 5824 OFFICERS AND MEN

Major-General Flagler of the Rainbow Division Was a Passenger Also, His Division Being the Next One to Come Back from Overseas Service.

Boston, April 7.—The troopship Agamemnon with 5,824 officers and doughboys arrived from France to-day. Her first message to the waiting thousands was "We have no sick or wounded."

On board the Agamemnon are 5,824 officers and men, including the 102d infantry regiment and the 101st machine gun battalion, made up of Connecticut and Vermont men; companies L and M of the 103d infantry; and field and staff officers of the 101st field artillery, together with batteries A and B of the same organization. A number of casual companies made up of men from New York and Ohio also are on board.

Major General Clement A. F. Flagler, commander of the 42d (Rainbow) division, also is returning on the Agamemnon. His division is expected to be the next complete organization to be returned to this country.

Connecticut troops returning from France to-day on the transport Agamemnon had a happy welcome in store. More than one thousand men and women from their state, including state and city officials and relatives and intimate friends of the soldiers, were here to greet the former Connecticut National Guardsmen, who went overseas as the 102d infantry regiment and as members of the 101st machine gun battalion, recruited largely from Hartford and New Haven.

These visitors were given special privileges by the welcoming officials here. Passes to go down the harbor on vessels of the reception fleet, and later to greet the boys on Commonwealth pier when the ship docked, were provided by Mayor Andrew J. Peters, and other arrangements were made to afford the visitors every opportunity to carry out their plan of giving the Connecticut boys a welcome long to be remembered.

Governor Marcus H. Holcomb headed the Connecticut delegation which included in addition to a general state committee, individual committees from Hartford, Waterbury, New Haven, New Britain and Bristol. Lieutenant Colonel James M. Howard, who commanded the 101st machine gun battalion when it went overseas, and Captain Morgan G. Bulkeley, jr., who also went with the unit and later returned to this country, are members of the committee named by Mayor Kinsella of Hartford to meet the members of their former commands to-day.

Mayor Fitzgerald and President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale headed the New Haven delegation, which included representative merchants, newspaper publishers, labor delegates and women war workers. The Bristol delegation came prepared to present to the commanding officer of Co. D, 102d infantry, a victory wreath in the name of the people of that town.

Mayor William H. Sandland of Waterbury brought 31 veterans of the 102d infantry sent home because of wounds, to assist him in telling the Connecticut boys how glad the city is to have them back. There were at least 200 others in the Waterbury party, also. They were accompanied by a life and drum corps and had a chorus leader.

The Meriden committee was led by Mayor Henry T. King, Mrs. John R. Feag, and H. Wales Lewis. This delegation, like the others, was provided with cigarettes and chocolates for the boys on the troop ship.

The Connecticut visitors went down the harbor on the steamer John H. Sullivan, the scout patrol boats Actus and Machigonne and the gunboat Don Juan d'Austria.

Of the 5,824 officers and men on the Agamemnon more than 4,200 are members of the 102d regiment and the 101st machine gun battalion, the Connecticut organizations. The infantry, however, met with such heavy casualties overseas that less than half the present membership actually are Connecticut men, the others being replacements from many sections of the country.

The Connecticut troops, according to war department records, number 50 officers and 1,689 men out of a total strength of 99 officers and 3,788 men. On that account it had been announced that 49 officers and 2,099 of the men eventually will be sent to camps other than Camp Devens for demobilization. They will be permitted to remain at Devens until after the parade of the 26th division in Boston if they wish, but if they prefer will be forwarded immediately to other demobilization centers. The many sections from which they come is indicated by the announcement that they will be mustered out at Camps Upton, Dix, Lee, Jackson, Gordon, Sherman, Taylor, Curtis, Grant, Pike, Dodge, Funston, Logan and Lewis.

The 102d infantry left New Haven in October, 1917, with Colonel E. L. Ishell, formerly of the National Guard, commanding. Later in France he was rewarded and assigned to other duty in

GREAT PARADE OF 26TH DIVISION IN BOSTON WILL BE APRIL 25

Boston, April 7.—The parade in Boston of the 26th division will be on April 25, the start being at 11 o'clock in the forenoon. This was announced definitely to-day by Colonel Albert S. Williams, chief of staff to Major-General Edwards, the old commander of the Yankees, after a conference with representatives of Major-General Hale, the present commander, and various civic committees. The route will be as already announced.

England and France, and has not yet returned. The regiment returned in command of Colonel Douglas Potts.

The 102d infantry took part in operations of the 26th division from the Chemin des Dames to the Meuse-Argonne offensive. Just before leaving for home the regiment was billeted south of La Mans.

Included in the 101st machine gun battalion are men from Vermont as well as from Connecticut. The battalion is commanded by Captain Rawdon W. Myers.

The Agamemnon passengers also included base hospital number 4, consisting of 33 officers and 171 men. Most of the hospital personnel will be demobilized at Camp Sherman, Ohio.

DIVISION DISCHARGES 2 DAYS AFTER PARADE

Four Days Will Be Required for the Demobilization, the 104th Infantry Being First.

Ayer, Mass., April 7.—The discharge of members of the 26th division is expected to begin within two days after the divisional parade in Boston. Four days will be required, the present plan calling for the demobilization of the 104th infantry and the 101st engineers on the first day; the 101st and 103d infantry on the second day; the 102d infantry, 101st and 102d field artillery, 101st machine gun battalion and headquarters of the 51st and 52d infantry brigades and 51st field artillery brigade on the third day; and on the fourth day, the 103d field artillery, 102d and 103d machine gun battalions, 101st field signal battalion, 101st ammunition train, 101st sanitary train, postoffice unit, sales commissary 105, train headquarters and division headquarters.

Orders regarding the Boston parade said that all the men would wear steel helmets and the artillery all would carry rifles and side arms. There will be no mounted outfits in the parade. The plans call for the transportation of 14,977 men to Boston on the day before the parade and the others on the day of the demonstration. None of the units will remain in Boston over 26 hours.

TRANSPORT WINFREDIAN SAILED YESTERDAY

It Is Supposed That She Carried Some of the Remaining Units of the 26th Division—She Has No Sick or Wounded.

Boston, April 7.—The transport Winfredian, with 2,327 officers and men, sailed from Brest, France, for Boston yesterday, according to a cablegram received to-day at northwestern army headquarters here. The dispatch did not state that units the men were attached. Several organizations of the 26th division were still at Brest awaiting a convoy when the Mongolian, now on the way over, left there March 31, and officials were inclined to believe that some of these men might be on the Winfredian. There are no sick or wounded aboard.

BAKER GOES ABROAD; ALSO CONGRESSMEN

Fifteen Members of House Military Committee Were Passengers on the Leviathan To-day.

New York, April 7.—Secretary of War Baker, U. S. Wallace of Tacoma, Wash., the new United States ambassador to France, 15 members of the House military affairs committee, and Warren Pershing, the nine-year-old son of General Pershing, accompanied by his guardian, Sergeant Welch, were passengers aboard the steamship Leviathan, which sailed from here at noon to-day for Europe.

Secretary Baker is going abroad to attend meetings of the allied liquidation commission in Paris and Tours for settling payments between England, France and the United States for war material. He will be in France only a week or ten days.

Before his departure the secretary set at rest the question of whether a parade of the 77th (New York national army) division could be held in this city, by saying that the war department favored the parade and that there should be no difficulty about assembling and parading at least the major part of the division, arrangements having been made to send the units home as close together as possible.

The congressional delegation aboard the big liner was headed by former Chairman S. H. Dent of Alabama, and was accompanied by representatives of the general staff of the United States army. Representative Julius Kahn of California, the new chairman of the committee, is already in France.

Mr. Dent said the representatives would make an inspection tour of American camps and military bases in France and the occupied area. They will also investigate, he said, the military mail service, registration of American soldiers' graves, the school system now in operation by the American expeditionary forces, and the records of the various divisions participating in the important engagements of the war.

Ambassador Wallace was accompanied by his secretary and Mrs. Wallace.

Secretary Baker said he hoped to surprise General Pershing by presenting him, adding that the lad had been living with his aunts, Miss Mary Pershing and Mrs. D. M. Butler, at Lincoln, Neb.

The reports do not say whether the attempted revolution in Budapest was organized by the socialists or the bourgeois parties.

PRES. WILSON'S COLD WEARING ITSELF OUT

His Condition Was Improved To-day, But His Physician Ordered Him to Stay in His Room.

Paris, April 7.—President Wilson's condition was improved this morning, but by the direction of Rear Admiral Grayson, his physician, the president will remain in his room to-day, attending no meetings.

Apparently the president's cold is in the latest stages of the wearing-off process. He hopes to be able to resume work Tuesday.

John Fitzpatrick Was Official at Sullivan-Kilran Bout.

New Orleans, April 7.—John Fitzpatrick, who refereed the fight in Mississippi City in which John L. Sullivan won the world's championship from Jake Kilran, died at his home here to-day, aged 75. He was for many years a Democratic leader and was delegate to several national conventions. He was mayor of New Orleans from 1892 to 1896.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Miss Molly Giudici, who teaches school in West Topsham, spent the week end at her home on Beckley street.

Miss Velma Coffin left this morning for the Bryant & Stratton business college, Boston, where she will take the regular course.

P. D. Molla of Berlin street is recovering very satisfactorily from a two weeks' illness with pneumonia and is now able to sit up.

Mrs. George Shannon is spending two weeks with her parents in Brandon while her husband is engaged in repair work for the telephone company in Waterbury.

Frank Shields, who gives his home as Stratford, answered to a charge of intoxication this morning before Judge Scott and was fined $15 with costs of $8.10. He was arrested Saturday.

Mrs. W. H. Cardell and two sons, James and William, of Bristol spent the week end with the former's sister, Mrs. C. J. Allen of Beckley street, returning to their home this morning.

The assessors again remind all those liable to taxes to call and file their inventories as early as possible. There remains a week in which this can be done and the office in city hall is open every day and for two hours in the evening from 6 to 8.

The Ida Read W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. Waterman for the annual meeting and the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. George Maker; vice-president, Mrs. Fred Beckley; secretary, Mrs. R. C. Waterman; treasurer, Mrs. Harry Bradley. The reports of the committees were given and showed good work being done.

After the meeting refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Constable and Tax Collector George L. Morris is moving his office paraphernalia from the constable's room in the city hall building to room No. 116 in the Bolster block, which will henceforth be his office. Recently it was decided that the room in the city building be vacated by Constable Morris so that Miss Gridley, the social welfare worker of Barre, might have a definite location. Anyone wishing to phone to Mr. Morris can reach him by calling 371-M.

Miss Josephine Restelli was invited last evening to the home of Mrs. Mario Bielli on Ellison street, where 25 young ladies were laden down with gifts to shower upon their guest, Miss Restelli, who is to be wedded to Peter Paricelli next week, was presented a large basket of beautiful gifts consisting of silverware, linen and china. The young ladies indulged in various games and amusement besides enjoying music from a victrola. Sugar on snow was served to the young people by Mrs. Bielli.

GENERAL WAGE LEVEL TO BE RAISED ON R. R.

Order Will Be Issued Soon By the Railroad Administration to Restore Most of the Differentials.

Washington, D. C., April 7.—Wage advances to be given members of the four leading trainmen's and engineers' brotherhoods were discussed finally to-day between Director General Hines and the chiefs of the brotherhoods and the order probably will be issued within a few days.

The order will readjust wages so as to restore most of the differential between various classes of employees existing before Jan. 1, 1915. These wage relationships were disrupted by the general wage increase granted last year. A few rates will be lowered, it was said, but the general level will be raised.

It was reported after the conference to-day that the brotherhoods' application for time and a half pay for overtime had not been granted. Neither the brotherhood chiefs, nor Director General Hines would comment on this point.

MONTPELIER Adjutant General Johnson Describes Arrival of Troops in Boston.

Adjutant General H. T. Johnson, who was in Boston last week representing Governor Clement at the arriving of some of the ships from France with Vermont boys on them, came home Saturday morning. This does not mean that Vermont will not be represented when other boats arrive, for it has been arranged that members of the Vermont association in Boston will go down the harbor to each boat and the association rooms will be open to the boys coming back. Only a few Vermonters came on the boats last week. The 101st ammunition train, which is composed of Vermonters for the most part, will arrive in Boston about April 16. The date of the parade had not been fixed when General Johnson came away, but it will be between April 25 and May 2. The committee was to meet Saturday evening relative to the matter. Mrs. William J. Keville, whose husband has been the commanding officer of the Vermont boys, is the head of an organization which will greet the boys and carry to them the comforts they need when they are discharged. She met General Johnson while he was in Boston and seems to have the matter well in hand. She will need a little assistance of the Vermont public safety committee. General Johnson is also taking the matter up with the boards of trade in the communities from which the Vermont boys who composed the 101st ammunition train (713 boys) in number, went to the war. This will be financial assistance and it is anticipated that the boards of trade will be ready to respond. General Johnson, in telling of the arrival of the Mt. Vernon, said it was a pretty sight. The state of Massachusetts through its military department had chartered every boat it could find and there was a grand salute from the whistles of the boats, but he said it was nothing in comparison with the salute the 5,000 boys gave General Edwards when they saw him on the Monitor. Every soldier who could get on deck, was there while the port holes were filled with faces of those who could not get on deck. Soldiers were seen in the rigging of the ship and even hanging from the stacks.

The moon train on the Montpelier and Wells River railroad went to the war Saturday because the engine blew a cylinder head near Boltonville station while coming towards this city. An engine, 1020, from the Boston and Maine railroad was sent to Boltonville, where it was attached to the train, bringing it to this city. The Boston and Maine engine was then sent back to Wells River as one of the double-header on the mixed train. The Sortwell, which broke down, went to Wells River for repairs before coming to this city.

Harold Keegan arrived Saturday afternoon from Camp Merritt, having been discharged from the army.

J. B. Sanguinetti of Barre has been appointed administrator of the estate of John and Louis D. Tomas, both of Barre City. F. Ball of the same city has been appointed administrator of the estate of Sarah L. Ball, late of that city.

Miss Gertrude Smith was in Waterbury Saturday.

Referee in Bankruptcy W. N. Theriault this morning sent notices to the creditors in the estate of Joseph Poulin, who was adjudged a bankrupt about two years ago, that a final meeting will be held April 17.

A hearing took place in probate court this morning relative to the committing of James McAvoy of Waterbury to the state hospital at state expense. Charles Adams represented the town and state's Attorney E. R. Davis the state. T. H. Cave, jr., of Barre City, has been appointed administrator of the estate of Maria Broziewicz, late of Barre City. D. F. Moriarty of Waterbury has been appointed administrator of the estates of James O'Neill, late of Montpelier, and Mary O'Neill Goggins, late of Montpelier.

The Salvation Army conducted services at Washington county jail Sunday afternoon. Assigns of the county were present. The meeting was attended by several representatives who spent the week end here.

Walter F. Washburn and C. H. Heaton went to Burlington to attend, this afternoon, the funeral of John K. Hooper. Mr. Washburn was one of the bearers.

Miss M. L. Spencer, who has been stenographer in the secretary of the Senate office, left this morning for Newfane to act as court reporter in the Windham county court of record.

Harold Keegan, who arrived home from the army Saturday, left this morning for Windsor and White River Junction to look after the moving picture places in which he is interested.

Mrs. A. Sherburne, who is a matron at one of the cottages connected with Smith college, has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Robert Jones.

To avoid the revenue tax on a quantity of liquor which the officers have seized in recent raids, which liquor was stored in the old police station in Montpelier, the stuff has been spilled, the job having taken place so that it would not be on hand April 1.

John A. Bartlett, who was in the Boston base hospital unit, arrived home Saturday night, having been discharged from service.

Clara, the nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Richardson, died Saturday evening after a few days' illness of pneumonia. She was born in Berlin and had lived there all her life. Besides her parents, she leaves a sister, Elsie; a brother, Harvey, the latter of whom is ill with pneumonia; and two halfbrothers. The funeral will take place at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from her late home.

PISTOL DUELS AT LAWRENCE

Policeman John Mahan Was Badly Wounded by Stone Hurlled in Riot

POLICE ATTEMPTED TO STOP DISORDER

Bomb Was Exploded at Tenement House, But No One Was Hurt

Lawrence, Mass., April 7.—Rioting marked by promiscuous firing by strike sympathizers and police, opened the 10th week of the textile strike here to-day. The outbreak occurred in the vicinity of the Everett mills shortly before 7 o'clock, a few hours after the city had been stirred by the explosion of a bomb in a tenement house in the same neighborhood.

Early reports indicated that no one was wounded by the shooting, although several rioters and policemen were injured by sticks, stones and clubs.

The rioting started when a few strike sympathizers began throwing stones at mill windows and then shifted their attack to policemen who sought to quiet them. The crowd grew rapidly until there were several hundred persons in the vicinity and the little squad of officers on duty called for reserves.

Marshal Timothy O'Brien responded with a large force.

Finding their clubs ineffective, the police drew their revolvers and their shots were answered by others from the crowd. Men and women appeared at windows with missiles and the police fired toward them to drive them from their points of vantage.

The rioting occurred at Common and Newbury streets, where there are many tenement houses. The crowd, driven back by the police, sought shelter among the buildings, taking with them those who had been injured by the officers' clubs.

Windows in a number of the houses were broken and there was much damage at the Everett mill. This plant was closed soon after the strike for 50 hours' pay for 48 hours' work was inaugurated and has not been reopened.

The bomb explosion occurred before daylight in a house at 41 Newbury street. The rear door and porch were destroyed and the cellar wall of the house torn open by the explosion. Although a score of persons were in the house attending a wake, no one was injured. Several persons in nearby homes were thrown from their beds.

Police officials said the bomb probably was intended for an adjoining house occupied by mill workers who recently moved here and took jobs left by strikers.

Twenty-three arrests were made during the disturbance this morning, 19 on charges of rioting, four for disturbance and one for interfering with an officer. The police said they were unable to find the persons responsible for the bomb explosion.

Officer John Mahan of Lowell, who was struck in the face by a stone, was reported in a serious condition. No other officers were badly hurt.

Women and children were active on the picket line this morning. It had been announced last night that the children of strikers would be kept from schools to-day because of alleged anti-strike activities by teachers. This morning many women appeared as pickets, accompanied by two and three children, most of them of primary school age. In the mill districts also other women with stones in their hands, drove away children who were on their way to school.

WAS NEARLY 80. Ferdinand Collins Died of Hardening of the Arteries.

Waterbury, April 7.—Ferdinand Collins, aged nearly 80 years, died last night of hardening of the arteries. He was born in Canada and was first married there. One daughter of that marriage, Mrs. Lizzie Estabrooke, of Claremont, N. H., survives. After he moved to Waterbury he married Ellen Prescott, who survives him, together with nine children, as follows: Mrs. Louis Welch and James Collins of Duxbury, Mrs. James Campbell of Hartford, Misses Jennie, Mary and Hazel and Clifford Collins of Waterbury, William, who is in the U. S. service in the South and Frank, who is in the service in France.

Mr. Collins was well liked by many people. He formerly was employed by Mr. Warren and then for 30 years was employed on a farm on Crossett hill.

The funeral will be held at St. Andrew's church Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

THINKS PAPER FORGERIES. But Does Not Accuse Capt. Chamberlain of Committing Forgery.

London, April 7.—Wilfred M. Webb, a handwriting expert of the British war office, testifying to-day at the resumption of the court martial of Captain E. G. Chamberlain of San Antonio, Tex., in connection with his reported aerial exploits on the British front last summer, expressed the belief that the documents offered by Chamberlain to corroborate his claims were forgeries. He did not charge, however, that the forgeries were committed by Chamberlain, but pointed out what he believed to be the similarity between the handwriting of the accused American officer and that of the signatures purporting to be those of officers writing to substantiate Chamberlain's story.

Mr. Webb said that the same characteristics of misspelling simple words appeared in reports supposed to be written by four different officers. The name Chamberlain, he testified, was consistently misspelled.

13TH WEEK AND PROBABLY LAST

Vermont Legislature Assembles To-night to Wind Up Affairs

THREE VETOES ARE TO BE CONSIDERED

House Has 16 Bills and the Senate Has Over 25

This evening the Vermont legislature will start its spurt on the home stretch of the race for adjournment Wednesday at noon. To-day is the 90th day of the session, the opening of the 13th week, and if the legislature of 1919 is to adjourn short of 95 days, it will have to make every minute count from the time the gavel falls for this evening's session until the last bill has been disposed of.

A summary of business in both houses up to Saturday noon shows that there are about 16 bills in the House yet to be disposed of, while the Senate has between 25 and 30, including resolutions, which have not yet received final action. The House has six bills and one resolution still in committee and six bills and two resolutions on the calendar for this evening. The Senate has nine bills and resolutions still in committee. There are six bills and several resolutions on the Senate calendar for this evening.

There are three bills in a committee of conference, among them H. 327, the budget bill, which is likely to cause some difficulty before it is agreed upon. The Senate committee of conference is made up of Senators Stuart, Vilas and Ames, the senators who fought the hardest, especially Vilas and Ames, to get the reductions in certain appropriations, as amended by the Senate and turned down by the House. The House committee is made up of Representatives Butts, Alexander and Ames of Reading, Mr. Butts being the chief representative of the military department in the House (the Senate cut out $35,000 for armories) and Mr. Austin, the champion of the educational department (the Senate clipped the educational appropriation from $204,000 to $200,000). Mr. Alexander is the chairman of the House committee on appropriations.

With this array of lawyers to fight out this matter, it is doubtful if the committee of conference on the budget will be able to report by 9 o'clock this evening, as requested by a resolution introduced in the House on Friday.

All three of
